

In the MERCURY'S Opinion

The Capitalist Conspiracy

WE ARE OFTEN ASKED by ordinary people who seem to think that we know something they don't why the Rockefellers and the other super-rich internationalists cooperate with the communists.

That this alliance is a fact no one can dispute. It has been documented in history since 1907, when Wall Street financier Jacob Schiff gave generously to indoctrinate Russian troops captured by the Japanese into marxism.

Dr. Anthony C. Sutton has documented it copiously in his three-volume work, Western Technology and Soviet Economic Development, 1917-1965, and in his shorter volume, Wall Street and the Bolshevik Revolution.

Everyone understands that capitalists make profit from trading with communists and that, of course, explains the mystery somewhat, but many of them—the Rockefellers, for example—positively promote communism with eagerness. They go far beyond passively accepting the profits that are wafted their way from trade deals with the Reds; they strongly promote the communist program with their money and their influence.

Of this there can be no doubt, either. By itself, communism cannot survive. It needs investment from the outside to sustain it. That investment is never lacking.

So the question remains, and is expressed well by a recent letter from a reader:

I take the AMERICAN MERCURY and WASHINGTON OBSERVER combination and think that it is the best there is. I read each issue voraciously and pass them on to my children with instructions to read them because I am convinced that they will get a better education that way than they are getting in school. But I must admit that there is a question that bothers me and I cannot understand it. I've talked to others about it, too, but they do not have a satisfactory answer. What I want to know is why in God's name do the super-rich capitalists, such as the Rockefellers, work so hard to bring communism to this Country and to the world? Don't they know that they will be the first ones killed by the Reds when they take over? Please answer.

It is evident that either the Rockefellers and their ilk know something the rest of us don't, or they are fools indeed. Can they really be as blind to the realities of communism as they seem to be? Don't they know that the Bolsheviks are known to have killed at least 30 million Russians after they took over, and the Chinese Reds twice that? How can they possibly avoid the fate that Communists have in store for capitalists?

The answer to the question is, of course, that the Rockefellers do indeed know something that the rest of us do not—they know that they have nothing to fear from communists because they are part of the communist system.

Communism has many masks. It is many things to many men. To intellectuals and liberal Christians it is a utopia of equality for all, where no man exploits another and no one receives more than anyone else for his labors.

To fundamental Christians, communism is the enemy of God—the hand of Satan on earth.

To those who are forced to live under it, communism is a dictatorship, tightly controlled by the “super-rich” commissars who run it but unpleasant for everyone else.

To those who run it, communism is a very good thing. The men in the Kremlin are practical men, and not stupid enough to believe in the communist ideology. To keep it running, they must profess a belief in it themselves, and they must eliminate by execution or expulsion all who do not profess a similar belief.

And to the super-capitalists, communism is a captive market—a beautiful monopoly where competition does not exist. They are not fooled by the phoney ideology of the system. They know that communism allows two classes only—the very rich and the very poor. The middle class does not exist. Labor unions do not exist. Strikes are treason against the system. A “nationalized” industry is in fact an industry that guarantees profits.

It is well known that the Rockefellers own or control the Baku oil fields, in the Caucasus. They also own or control other industries inside the Soviet Union, such as the wood pulp and paper industry. They also appear to have taken over the international banking functions for the government monopoly. Previously, this was in the hands of a Swedish cabal.

The super-capitalists have no fear of the communists. Why should they? The communists are much more dependent upon the supercapitalists than vice-versa. They need them to provide capital and technological expertise. Without the supercapitalists of the West to support them, the commissars would soon be overthrown.

It is to the interests of the Wall Street monopolists as well as to the ruling class inside the USSR to preserve the status quo. This is precisely why all attempts to free the captive nations of Europe are doomed to failure—not because of the power of the Kremlin but because of the desire of the American government (which is a tool of the supercapitalists) to expand the profitable trade monopoly of the internationalists.

It is also why the government fights any manifestation of anti-communism among the people. It is why McCarthy had to be destroyed, and why all of the politicians (including the “conservative” ones) will unite against American nationalism.

The true enemy of the super-rich monopoly capitalists is not the communists or the socialists, and it certainly is not the bumbling, misled “conservatives.” The enemy of the capitalist—communist cabal is nationalism—only nationalism.

Only nationalism has shown that it can defeat communism. “Conservatism” can’t do it; Libertarianism can’t do it, nothing else can defeat internationalism (communism and supercapitalism) except nationalism.

Why is it so hard to get people to accept that the real reason for the mess we are in is the one they are most familiar with in their daily lives—MONEY? We guess that people like to think that there is something more esoteric and grand at the root of history than the mundane and crass grab for money and power.

But it is the beginning of wisdom to understand that there is no need for fine-spun conspiracies when men smell a chance to make money. At the root of every evil plot you will find the love of money—the root of all evil. (1 Tim. 6:10)

Readers familiar with the work of the great American seer and genius, Francis Parker Yockey,* will understand this. They will also know that the Age of Materialism is already dead; only its stinking corpse remains.
